MARKET SUMMARY

The Iranian conflict that erupted at the end of February and has continued since then shaped bond market performance in March. Rising global oil prices fueled inflation concerns, leading to an increase in bond yields. In the Central and Eastern European region, yields rose significantly by 50– 100 basis points. In Poland, yields increased by 106 basis points at the three-year maturity, 103 basis points at the five-year maturity, and 95 basis points at the ten-year maturity compared to the beginning of the month. The market is now pricing in two rate hikes for 2026, instead of the previously expected single rate cut. At its early March policy meeting, the Polish central bank still reduced the policy rate by 25 basis points, but in its statement it already highlighted the potential impact of the Iranian conflict, signaling a more cautious stance. According to preliminary data, inflation rose from 2.1% to 3% in March, partly reflecting higher energy and oil prices. Industrial production increased by 1.5% in the second month of 2026. Retail sales were stronger, posting a 5% year -on-year increase in February. Geopolitical uncertainty has increased due to the situation, and the outcome of the conflict remains unclear. Short-term yields are currently trading around the policy rate, which could represent an attractive level if the conflict is resolved in the near term.
